Stephen,

The probability of my client losing is so low that I do not know why you waste my time.

Greg:

Please note that we have not confirmed these depositions yet. I do not know either witness's availability. I asked you to give us potential dates, but, instead, you chose to unilaterally set those dates without conferring with us about our witnesses. I will check on their availability, but note that these dates may need to change.

It is curious that you are unilaterally setting dates for depositions of our witnesses without producing documents that are now more than a month and a half overdue and now two weeks past the deadline the court instructed you to produce them. I realize you are trying to salvage a case that is falling apart, but that is not going to change the outcome. The evidence supporting Compass Marketing's defense continues to mount. I am looking forward to deposing your client, Daniel White, and Michael White. Perhaps you are refusing to turn over the documents that are long overdue to delay those depositions, but you cannot delay that production indefinitely.

Stephen
